People Leaders

Align strategy and delivery. Deliver better results.

Whether you're a manager, the head of a department, or maybe a VP, you're a people leader and there are many responsibilities that come with that. Chief among them is understanding the mission/vision of your business as well as your top-level objectives across different intervals of time and imprinting this information on your teams to make it all possible. At the same time, you must set expectations with executive leadership based on insights from your Agile teams.

Irrespective of the territory you preside over – whether it's Dev, Ops, or IT – to do your job effectively, you don't need static reports that are immediately out of date or access to the minutia of detail housed in team-level tools. No, you need a solution that can help connect strategy to delivery so that you have the insight you need to ensure teams are delivering their most impactful work. You know, real data that can influence the business decision to pivot or persevere, or generally guide strategic decision-making. What's more, this solution should help keep teams aligned to business objectives, and if and when they change, respond accordingly.

Identify risks and remove roadblocks

Understand risks to plans resulting from dependency conflicts, blockers, and resource constraints, and help drive proactive measures to enable teams to deliver on time.

Make data-driven decisions

Use built-in metrics to assess team performance, make sound strategic decisions on what to work on and when, and promote continuous improvement without disrupting team productivity.

Agile Program Execution Dashboard

Provide executive-level insights

Deliver real-time analytics and consistent reporting to executive leadership by leveraging the open data access we provide to build custom reporting in tools like Power BI, Tableau, and more.

Maximize ROI

See what value is being delivered relative to the expenditure of your teams' time and effort and adjust your plans and approach to maximize ROI.

> "[Board owners] always know the status without sending a single email. Everything they need is right there and people can work in whichever way that helps them be effective in delivery."

– Alexis Swann, IT Portfolio Manager at Emory Healthcare
